My desire was to travel the world when I retired from DOD, little did I know it was all as close as the nearest Denny's restaurant! John and I would sit there for hours, him giving me more new adventures each time. The biggest lesson John instilled in me, was not to worry about so much. Do what you can and put the rest in your faith in Christ. These last few years, I could resite the stories by heart, because he would gladly do reruns. And I was delighted to hear them again. May his tender soul rest now, and know that I will carry on his teachings and wonderful stories of the places I thought I'd never see.

I am deeply saddened to hear about the passing of Jack Keegan. Jack was a very generous uncle to me. I particularly will never forget him flying to London to meet me and accompany me to the house of the family I was staying with for my college semester abroad. He really helped ease my anxieties in that situation. He always let me and my sisters know how much he cared for us. He will forever be in my heart.
